Longer Season Than Usual This Fall -More Time to Whip the Various Elevens Into Shape—Schedules Show How Interest in the Sport Is Spreading.

college gridiron campaign which begins this month will be a longer one than sual for the reason that Thanksgiving falls on the last day of November nd Thanksgiving Day is the final day of he season for the college elevens. There one more big engagement after that the Army-Navy game, which this year comes on Saturday, Dec. 2. The campaign will be ushered in by a few games Sept. 16 and will continue for eleven weeks, with games on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Last year Thanksgiving came sarlier in November than this year, which meant a shorter season and consequently less time in which teams might build up and develop for their important contests. The result was that there had to be more or less hurrying to whip the teams into form. It is not unreasonable to expect, therefore, that with more time to devote to the very important procedure of picking men and welding them into a team, the climax of the season will find teams of better grade as teams than last season. This, of course, is provided the material is adequate.

The schedules for the approaching season show that there are to be 248 games in the Eastern college circle and 144 in the West-392 in all. That is a good deal of football. It shows how tremendously the game has spread and will give the devotees of the sport a rich and varied program of pigskin battling. Of all the teams the Carlisle Indians are the most extensive travelers. The bigger teams, such as Harvard, Yale Princeton, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Cornell, make only two or three trips from home-and those short trips-and therein have an advantage of the smaller fellows. The former play nearly all of their games on home grounds, they being the bigger attractions, and hence being able to have most of their opponents come to them. West Point and Annapolis travel less than West Point and Annapolis travel less than other teams, playing every game but one at home. The schedule for the Indians this year shows that they play at Harrisburg, Richmond, Philadelphia, Cambridge Cincinnati, Pittsburg and Washington, as well as at home. Doubtless they plan out many a play to the music of rolling car wheels. In the West they make longer journeys than hereabouts. For instance the Notre Dame (Ind.) eleven makes a trip to Madison, Wis., and the University of Nebraska eleven makes a jump from Lincoln to Ann Arbor, Mich., for a single game.

The schedule contains a number of cases in which two teams that are to meet later

The schedule contains a number of cases in which two teams that are to meet later play against a mutual adversary on dates close together, so that something of a line may be had on the first two teams for their game. Of course, teams do not always develop equally, and various influences may make comparisons as to scores unreliable, but the comparisons are interesting on their own account, and the games serve to give an idea of the styles of the two teams that will come together later. The Harvard-West Point and Yale-West

The Harvard-West Point and Yale-West Point games always are interesting, not only in themselves, but, coming only a week apart, as showing how two big rivals are progressing for their own encounter. Harvard plays the soldiers on Oct. 21, and a week later the Elis tackle the cadets. On Oct. 4 this year Yale is to play Wesleyan, and three days later Columbia plays Wesleyan. Both Yale and Columbia will be more or less crude that early in the season, but the game of each with the Methodists will be all the more interesting for that very reason. Which will make the more progress before they come together in this city on Nov. 4?

Cornell plays Bucknell on Oct. 7, and Princeton plays Bucknell on Oct. 14. Those two games will be eagerly watched and deductions made as to the possible bearing the results may have on the Princeton-Cornell game. There are numerous instances of this kind in the season's arrangements of nell game. There are numerous instances of this kind in the season's arrangements of

of this kind in the season's arrangements of games.

Yale plays the Springfield Training School on Oct. 11, while Harvard measures strength with the S. T. S. on Oct. 14, but three days latter. Williams and Amherst, whose game on Nov: 18 is an important one, each play Columbia in October, Williams on the fourteenth, Amherst on the twenty-first. Columbia and Cornell clash on Nov. 18, and Pennsylvania and Columbia on Nov. 25. On Nov. 20 Cornell and Pennsylvania lock horns, so that what they did against Columbia will be sure to form the basis of deductions for their Thanksgiving Day battle. Princeton's game with Columbia and Yale's game with the Morningside men come only a week apart—Oct. 28 and Nov. 4 being the dates—and the form students will be busy making comparisons from the showing of the Tiger and the Bulldog against the Blue and White.

Three weeks intervene between Harvard's game with Williams, but even that lengthy stretch will not prevent lively conjecture as to what will happen when Harvard and Dartmouth meet. Dartmouth and Brown are to meet on Nov. 25. Brown plays Harvard on Nov. 18. Yale stacks up against Brown two weeks after the Crimson and Brown have it out. There is only one Brown two weeks after the Crimson and Brown have it out. There is only one team that both West Point and Annapolis meet, the Virginia Polytechnic Institute. The Army meets V. P. I. on Oct. 14, and the Navy meets V. P. I. on Nov. 25. An interval of five weeks is too much on which to base a reliable opinion as to the relative strength of the soldiers and the middles, but that will not prevent the middles from trying to roll up the bigger score against V. P. I.

Woodruff to Coach Carlisle Indians.

George Woodruff, who learned the game at Tale and became famous in gridiron circles as coach the Carlisle Indians this fall. Woodruff high as a football strategist. It is said that he has devised some new wrinkles that will bother opponents a whole lot, and now the red men are to be the illustrators of the new moves. Anyway, with Woodruff as coach and the plays that he is said to have up his sleeve it is expected that the Indians will make things more interesting than ever for opponents.

The Realty Auction Market. The public auction sale market of the week just closed brought out nothing of consequence. Its prominent feature was its dulness, which was even more noticeable than during the preceding week. In fact, it was, with the exception of the last week of July, the dullest week that the auction market has had this summer. However, it is thought that the inactivity in this branch of realty has reached the turning point. From now on a marked increase in the number and nature of offerings will be apparent. Even the present week's schedule shows a greater variety of offerings than has been offered at public auction for some weeks past. During the week just closed there were only two parcels sold out of a possible four that made up the schedule. Both the parcels were private houses located in good sections. The four story dwelling at No. 68 West Sixtyninth street went to the plaintifi for $37,875. The other parcel, a Gerry leasehold at 10 East Porty-seventh street, was knocked down to william Buhler for $3,400.

During the coming week seven foreclosure and two voluntary offerings are scheduled. Joseph P. Day will start the week at the Vesey street exchange on Wednesday by offering two parcels, one the Hotel Spalding, a twelve story building at Nos. 127 to 135 West Forty-third street, and the other a four story brownstone dwelling at No. 29 Beekman place. On the same day Bryan L. Kennelly will sell a two story frame dwelling at No. 737 Pelham avenue and the Geiszler Hass Realty Company will offer at the Bronx rooms the southeast corner of Morris avenue and 173d street, a plot 96x56, for an estate. On Thursday four sales are scheduled to take place. Bryan L. Kennelly will offer the Julia Hunter property, of about 28 acres between East Chester road, Maple street and Bronx and Pelham parkways, and for the Pennsylvania Eairoad, in partition proceedings, the gore plot on the west side of The public auction sale market of the week just closed brought out nothing of conse
